

EXL elevates Anand Logani to Chief Digital Officer

April 25, 2023

Appointment further accelerates EXL's leadership role in data-led digital transformation to help clients achieve competitive advantage

NEW YORK, April 25, 2023 (GLOBE NEWSWIRE) -- EXL [NASDAQ: EXLS], a leading data analytics and digital operations and solutions company, has promoted Anand "Andy" Logani to Chief Digital Officer. In this role, Logani has responsibility for EXL's digital business, which leverages data, analytics, AI and cloud to help the world's largest corporations deliver improved customer experience, operational efficiency and better business outcomes.

Logani will lead EXL's digital strategy and execution, including implementing cutting-edge technologies and creating new digital products and services. He will also ensure that EXL's digital initiatives drive overall business strategy to accelerate growth. Logani has been with EXL for over 22 years and has helped build its life and annuity insurance business into an award-winning industry leader.

"At EXL, we are transforming how businesses leverage data – enabling better business decisions, embedding intelligence in workflows, and streamlining operations to help our clients build robust, data-led enterprises," said Rohit Kapoor, chief executive officer and vice chairman of EXL. "Andy brings a wealth of expertise leading customer data and technology transformation initiatives across our company, and he has the knowledge to bring the entire strength of EXL to integrate and align our digital initiatives across our business units for our clients."

Logani has developed strategic relationships with global insurance carriers, forged alliances with key industry players, led large-scale transformation programs, and developed an ecosystem of people, processes, and technologies for sustained growth. He has been instrumental in conceptualizing and deploying end-to-end commercial solutions combining data analytics, modern tech stacks and domain knowledge.

"EXL's digital business is uniquely positioned for growth in the marketplace. We have developed pioneering, globally recognized digital solutions that cut across every area of our business and we're just getting started," said Logani. "I am confident that my knowledge of the EXL business and my close relationships with our clients and our amazing talent will help me hit the ground running and continue to build on our extraordinary growth trajectory."

Logani succeeds Ankor Rai, who most recently led the digital business, which continues to see strong momentum and is creating breakthrough results for EXL clients.
