EXL Honored with 2013 LOMA Excellence for Insurance Training

Award recognizes dedication to industry expertise and professional development

NEW YORK, June 25, 2013 - ExlService Holdings, Inc. (NASDAQ: EXLS), a business process solutions company, has been recognized by Life Office Management Association (LOMA) with the 2013 LOMA Excellence in Education Award for developing highly skilled professionals to serve the insurance industry. The award will be presented at LOMA's Annual Conference and Conferment this September in Orlando, Florida.

The Excellence in Education Award recognizes companies for outstanding employee development through the use of LOMA's professional education and learning programs. It also acknowledges company performance and continued growth in LOMA's exam enrollments.

"We are honored by this recognition from LOMA and it clearly underscores our commitment to both our clients' success and our employee development," said Mohan AVK, Executive Vice President and Global Head of Human Resources, EXL. "Our industry and academic partnerships significantly enhance our ability to design customized solutions which meet our client's specific business challenges and also substantially support developing careers of our professionals around the world."

"We take great pride in our efforts to develop professional teams that can offer insights into our clients' industries and operations," said Rembert de Villa, Executive Vice President and Head of Insurance and Healthcare, EXL. "We've maintained a close partnership with LOMA since 2002, and our relationship has grown significantly through the efforts of EXL's Insurance Academy, which provides our staff the opportunity to earn specific accreditations through LOMA, CII, FSA and HIPAA, among others."

EXL first won this award, which is typically given to insurers, in 2009. EXL employees have completed more than 400 LOMA insurance certifications.

"This is a highly prestigious award where less than 10% of LOMA's member organizations were awarded this year," said Robert A. Kerzner, President and CEO of LIMRA, LOMA. "EXL has demonstrated their commitment to industry excellence and has proven their continued strength in identifying and training professionals to be exceptional insurance subject matter experts."
